TU Alert — Student Persona

Primary end-user persona: the student who receives alerts and reports facility issues.

01 — PERSONA

Ploy Suthasin

"Pom Ploy" · Age 20 · Year 2, Faculty of Engineering · Lives in a dorm near Rangsit campus · Commutes by shared van + walking

Goals

- Get to class on time without surprises
- Feel confident that safety alerts mean something real
- Get broken facilities fixed without chasing anyone

Frustrations

- Can't tell a real alarm from a drill, so she waits and watches others first
- Reported a broken AC weeks ago by email — never heard back
- Muted the faculty LINE group after too much unrelated spam

02 — EMPATHY MAP

SAYS	THINKS
• “It's probably just a drill again.” • “I already reported that — nothing happened.” • “Someone will tell us if it's serious.”	• “Is this actually worth stopping what I'm doing for?” • “The university probably already knows about this.” • “Reporting things never seems to go anywhere, so why bother.”
DOES	FEELS
• Mutes group chats after notification overload • Watches what classmates do before reacting to an alarm • Complains to friends instead of filing an official report	• Mild anxiety during real incidents, masked by hesitation • Frustrated that reported issues disappear into silence • Distrustful of alarms after repeated false starts (“cry wolf” effect)

03 — JOBS TO BE DONE

01	When an alarm goes off, I want to know immediately whether it's real or a drill, so I can decide whether to evacuate now or continue what I'm doing.
02	When I notice something broken or hazardous on campus, I want to report it in seconds without needing to know who to email, so I can get it fixed without extra effort.
03	When I've submitted a complaint, I want to see its status, so I can trust that it's actually being handled instead of disappearing into silence.
